Question - 7:

What would you do if the seat belt signs were on and the aircraft is about to take off, but a passenger insist that he has to kneel down to conduct his prayer due to religious reasons?

Ans:

Well obviously this is a delicate situation. However first and foremost is Passenger safety.

I would deal with this situation by calmly speaking to the passenger and telling him we respect his choice to pray but he cannot do this during take-off because of the danger to himself and other passengers. I would politely ask him to take his seat.

Also if I were a junior Cabin Crew I would confer with a senior as there are many things involved.

Question - 8:

How would you deal with this situation if there are 60 children on the flight, but you only have 40 toys?

Ans:

There are a number of things I could do here.

* I'd check out each kit and if appropriate I'd break it down into a coloring book for one child and a puzzle for another. I have done this before and it works out fine in most cases.

* I'll make sure the kit is age appropriate, some of the older kids may not want the entertainment items inside, so I'd make a call on the age limit when handing out the kit.

Question - 9:

What you do if a commercially important passenger complained that another commercially important passenger is snoring too loudly behind him?

Ans:

I would listen and sympathize with the passenger, but of course I cannot awaken the snorer (just yet anyway).

Offer earplugs and empathy will do a lot to elevate the situation. Maybe a drink will also help the passenger ignore the snoring. I can also suggest headphones piping in music.

Question - 10:

What you do if you saw one of your colleagues being deliberately rude to a passenger?

Ans:

* Firstly I would check with the Flight Attendant to make sure I heard and understood everything correctly. It would be terrible to falsely accuse someone. Maybe I had miss-heard.

* If the Cabin Crew seems to be genuinely at fault I would report it to a senior Flight Attendant. The reputation of the company and the enjoyment of the passengers is of course a very important concern.

* If I was the direct superior of the Flight Attendant, I would ask them the circumstances of the incident and take appropriate action. The crew would be given a verbal warning but the incident would be recorded in the crew briefing note.

* I would also approach the concerned passenger to find out if he was at all affected by his encounter with the crew and try to fix the situation.

Question - 11:

Do you think some passengers take their frustrations out on cabin crew?

Ans:

There are probably a number of reasons why Flight Attendants will face these frustrations.

* The passengers are in unfamiliar circumstances; they have probably had a hard time getting through ticketing, immigration and finding their way around the airport. Through the whole process you, as a Flight Attendant are probably the first person they have had to vent all this frustration on.

* Many passengers are uncomfortable or even afraid of flying; this frustration could be a sign of this fear. Almost certainly they are in unfamiliar circumstances.

* If the passenger has transmitted or gotten up early for the flight, they are probably tired and this tends to make people irritable.

Question - 17:

Tell me why should we hire you for our company?

Ans:

This is the time to sell yourself! It is all about how you fit into the position. not how the position fits with you. Talk about your skills and strengths that will benefit the company. Do not be general or desperate and answer with: 'Because I need a job' or 'I think it could be a nice to travel for free'. This question is not about you, it is about what you can do for them.

View All Answers

Question - 18:

Tell me are you applying for any other airlines? What you do if more than one airline offers you the job?

Ans:

Make sure that your answer stays professional.

Be honest, but keep it short.

Keep your focus on the airline you interview for and what you can do for them.

I will consider all the factors in my decision making and I will chose the employer which best fits my career aspirations. Your airline seems to be such a place for me.

View All Answers

Question - 19:

What you do to prepare for this interview?

Ans:

This is a perfect opportunity to tell them about the concerns you've had and what have you been doing to address them.

You want to come up as somebody who has researched not only the job, but also the airline and the aviation industry in general.

Nobody wants to hear that you just rolled out of bed and showed up at the interview hoping for the best.

View All Answers

Question - 20:

How long do you expect to work if we hired you?

Ans:

This is the moment to talk about beginning a career with the airline. Talk about your career goals and your long-term plans.

Do not discuss about planning to work with the airline just until you get enough experience to be hired by a bigger airline.

Keep it short and do not be specific, otherwise you put an expiration date on your career plans with them.

I worked for my previous employer for 5 years. This demonstrates that I am a loyal person. I plan to continuously grow, learn and improve myself and I will be happy to work as long as possible in an environment that keeps me challenged.

Question - 21:

Will you be able to work such long shifts?

Ans:

You will be rostered to operate flights that can be up to 14 hours long.

Your duty can start at 2AM or 9PM.

Focus on how you generally deal with tiredness and stress.

End on a positive note.

View All Answers

Question - 22:

What motivates you?

Ans:

This is a trap question!

You want to show the assessors that you are self-motivated when it comes to your work.

Do not answer that salary, travel benefits or cabin crew lifestyle are your motivators.

I always felt that it is important both for me personally and for the company to provide excellent service and have extremely happy customers every day.

Question - 23:

What you expect from a supervisor?

Ans:

* Be specific and give couple of traits that you appreciate in a manager.

* Focus on team spirit and integrity.

* Do not start talking negatively about your previous supervisors.

* I expect him/her to offer guidance and support. I also appreciate a supervisor who is fair, honest and encourages the professional development of each individual in the team.

Question - 24:

Can you easily deal with high pressure situations?

Ans:

Explain your ability to work under pressure, without describing with too much detail why you thought a specific situation was stressful.

The cabin crew job is a high pressure work environment, so do not say that you can't work well under pressure.

Do not spend too long discussing the amount of high stress in everyday life.

Yes. I have been dealing with busy times in the restaurant where there is time-pressure for the service to be completed. It actually motivates me to work faster and more efficient.

Question - 25:

What kind of persons you refuse to work with?

Ans:

This is a trap question!

Airlines are multi-cultural, multi-lingual, multi-national companies. Stay focused on how you are capable to learn something from everybody and on your willingness to be part of such a team.

Never admit there is a type of person you will refuse to work with unless that type of person is a detriment to the company and its policy.

I can work with all kinds of people. I believe that everybody has an interesting story to tell and something to teach me.

Question - 26:

Have you worked with someone whom you did not like?

Ans:

This is a trap question!

Speaking negatively about other people will show you as an unreliable character.

Stay professional and be diplomatic.

Not really. I believe that when disagreements occur, the matters can be taken up with the concerned person and be immediately solved.

Question - 28:

What challenge at work you faced and overcame recently?

Ans:

We received a new computer software that would take not only the reservations for the day, but also the customer details, the orders and the home-delivery schedule. It was taking a long time to input all the data while the customers were waiting. I asked the manager to get some training from the IT Company. In only 30 minutes they taught me all the shortcuts and I managed to be efficient when operating it.

Question - 30:

What weaknesses you have?

Ans:

I feel that my attention to detail is my weakness. I want everything to be perfect. Sometimes I get so caught up in small details that I forget to see the big picture. It was pointed out to me and I was able to improve myself. I am now constantly finding ways to balance both the details and the overall situation.

Disclose a weakness only when you have already taken steps to compensate for it.

Describe a challenge a how you overcame it, stating what you learned during the process.

Do not say that you have no weakness.

Question - 32:

Tell me the most fun that you ever experienced on the job?

Ans:

Discuss a successful project you enjoyed completing, not the workplace cafeteria pranks.

Take this chance to reinforce your team player skills.

Keep the answer short and professional.

Every December we have a 'sales person of the year' competition. Last year, the sales associates divided into 2 teams and we had our own competition to see who sells the most. We had great fun making daily charts and posting them for everyone to see. We sold so much that month, we became the best selling store and we were all praised by our manager.
