Question - 1:

What is Behavioral Interview?

Ans:

A job interviewing technique whereby the applicant is asked to describe past behavior in order to determine whether she is suitable for a position. For example, an interviewer may ask "Tell me about a time when you dealt with a disruptive customer". Responses are expected to give an indication of an applicant's professional conduct.

Question - 2:

Behavior based interview tips part 5:

- * Match your answers to the question completely in order to score numerical full points.
- * Rambling is a no-no and canned responses are out! Stay focused and exceed the interviewer's expectations.
- * Remember, ABC interviews are carried out in a consistent and systematic fashion for all the candidates.
- * Prove that you are capable of meeting and possibly exceeding their expectations.
- * Expect the interviewer's questions to be short and non-leading. Be accomplishment oriented in your responses.
- * Remember, Gov. has been shown to distinguish an outstanding from average performer.
- * Ask yourself if the core competencies they are seeking are the ones that you want to use in your next job.
- * Ask open-end questions that prompt more than a yes/no answer when it's appropriate.
- * Set up a video-taped Mock Interview with a trained Career Counselor to enhance your Gov. skills.
- * Remember, it is hard to fake the "right" answers so Practice, Practice!

Question - 3:

Behavior based interview tips part 4:

- * Remember, follow-up questions can include: "So what did you do?" and "What happened next?"
- * Act as if you were digging a well at key interactions or decision points to provide evidence of competencies.
- * Be prepared to discuss failures and what you learned from them.
- * Be sure the result reflects positively on you even if the result itself was not positive.
- * Be honest. Your stories have to be true and authentic. Skilled interviewers can see through a weak foundation.
- * Master the art of storytelling and make your impression to the recruiter is a positive, clear and a memorable one.
- * Absorb yourself in telling the story, don't just relate the facts. Put some enthusiasm in it.
- * Go beyond merely describing the situation/task and talk about the outcomes.
- * Demonstrate that you are thorough and you understand how your role fits into the goals of the larger organization.
- * Expect that the interviewer will be listening intently and taking notes during the process.

Question - 4:

Behavioral-based interview tips part 3:

Ans:

- * Remember, the four probes: "What did you think?" "What did you feel?" "What did you say?" and "What did you do?"
- * Answer how you did behave instead of how you would or should behave (traditional interview approach) in a situation.
- * Avoid saying, "What we did" and instead tell them, "What I did" The interviewer wants you to say "I" a lot.
- * Steer clear of saying, "What I would do..", but recall "What I did"

 * Expect to talk about 80 percent of the time during the interview and persuade them why they should hire you.
- * Remember that ABC reduces the risk that the interviewer will talk too much and dominate the conversation.
- * Remember, these are situational questions that are open-ended, non-directional and concrete.
- * Share a clear memory of the situation so interviewer feels as if they were present at the time the event actually happened.
- * Use of examples will make you confident in your responses because you will feel like you are reliving it from direct experience.
- * Anticipate the interviewer probing further after the initial question to gain more in-depth information.

Question - 5:

Behavioral-based interview tips part 2:

- * Focus on the key competencies that are important to the interviewer, not what you feel is important.
- * Pause for a nanosecond and think carefully and choose wisely the story you will use to make your point.
- * Answer using the S.T.A.R. Technique (Situation/Task, Action, Result).
- * Give them a brief overview of the specific situation/task, what action you took specifically and the end result.
- * Describe in detail the actions you took to deal with the situation or to complete the task.
- * Be sure the story has a beginning middle and a clear end. Tell your story chronologically.
- * Provide practical examples, events and challenges from your recent past.
- * Say stories that are important to you.
- Avoid being too general.
- * State stories that have a degree of drama where you had to overcome an obstacle or temporary setback.
