Online Store Manager Interview Questions And Answers Guide.

Question - 1:

Described Product management?

Ans:

Since the retail manager is an important part of the sales as well as concept process, they are also in charge of the entire chain of product management, right from ordering, to returning the commodities or products. This also includes keeping in mind any price changes that may occur.

With all these responsibilities, the store manager should have excellent conversational skills and should have the gift of the gab. The store manager is looked upon as a senior sales person by the entire sales team and is considered to be a problem solver. Therefore, the store manager should be smart and should have the quality of thinking on their feet.

Question - 18:

Should reps get warm leads?

Ans:

Similar question, different angle. The right answer is typically to get warm leads, but not because the reps are lazy or can't successfully build their own business from the ground up. Lead-driven sales are typically more cost effective than having expensive sales reps cold calling. Yes, leads are expensive up-front, but the eventual cost per acquisition and overall lifetime value and margin for the business on those new customers is usually much better when reps are making more efficient use of their time with warm leads.

View All Answers

Question - 19:

What is cold calling dead?

Ans:

Some interviewees may get defensive, or think this is a trick question. The answer, of course, is no. When all else fails (market conditions, marketing leads, etc.), picking up the phone is the one thing sales reps will always be able to control. But how they cold call - who they call, with what message and offer, at what frequency and cadence - is extremely important. Cold calling must be customer-centric and value-driven to succeed in today's buyer-centric world.

Question - 20:

What you see in the key skills?

Ans:

Common sales interview questions and answers revolve around how you view the skills involved in a specific sales technique or aspect of the sales process. For example, "What do you see are the key skills in closing a sale?" Answers to these types of questions should always focus on responding to the buyer's concerns and on how the product or service will benefit the recipient.

Question - 21:

How to move on from rejection?

Ans:

Rejections are common within sales jobs, and one of the primary reasons that most personalities could not handle sales roles. Try to downplay how hard you take rejections, but feel free and be honest about a technique you use to handle rejection or answer with something like, "I simply move on to the next prospect, because a rejection is simply a sign that the individual was not yet ready for our solution."

Question - 28:

How you can hold yourself as manager to highest standards?

Ans:

We all know the kind of manager who constantly shouts or bitterly complains when mistakes are made but gives himself a 'pass' when he fails. Don't be this kind of manager. Ideally, be harder to on yourself than you are on your employees. This can have a trickle-down effect: Employees see the types of goals and standards you set for yourself and want to emulate you because they look up to you.

Question - 29:

How you setting goals for yourself?

Ans:

Don't be the kind of person who never shoots for the moon. Staying measured in your goals doesn't mean that you should always play it conservative, never setting high goals. A manager who never punches above her weight can come across as lacking ambition. Even the conservative poker player knows they need to go 'all-in' from time to time.

Question - 30:

What you think about idea of "Under-promise, over-deliver"?

Ans:

This idea can apply to several different areas of life, but it's a great managerial mantra. Do you want to be the kind of person who has wildly optimistic goals that they never meet, or do you want to be the kind of person who sets measured goals and ends up exceeding them by leaps and bounds? Although this is about image, image is extremely important.

Question - 32:

How you tell employees that how much you appreciate them from time to time?

Ans:

Just go out and say it. Ask them out for a cup of coffee and tell them what you appreciate about them.

- * They're a hard worker
- * They effectively motivate other people
- * They're easy to coach
- * They're disciplined or go the extra mile
- * They always cheer you up, etc.

Don't mince words just tell them straight out. An employee who knows just how much they are appreciated will work harder, enjoy what they do more, and pass that psychic happiness along to other employees.

Question - 33:

How to make seniors employees feel good?

Ans:

- 1) In a meeting with your boss, for example, mention something one of your workers did well. If your boss happens to mention to that worker that you said something good about them, they're likely to feel that you appreciate them and made the effort to put in a good word. That sort of compliment doesn't go unnoticed.
- 2) Privately laud what your employees do well. Tell them when you have a moment. Go into detail. A private chat, however short, can have a positive impact on morale, resulting in more self-motivation.

Question - 34:

How you motivate your employees?

Ans:

Ask the employees how they're liking their job on a regular basis. Encourage them to be honest with you. Then take action based upon what they tell you. Offer perks that your employees will value. If health is important to them, give them time to go to the gym and work out. If their family is important, respect the time they may need to send their kids off to school in the morning or pick them up in the afternoon.

Question - 35:

How to be a Good Manager?

Ans:

There's a hierarchy of management in every large organization that keeps the whole operation running smoothly. A good manager is able to blend into the background, changing small things here and there to great effect. Being a good manager is about leading by example. It's one of the toughest jobs out there in part because you have to manage other people's expectations and also one of the least acknowledged. Despite this, there are several tricks of the trade that will help you successfully manage all your responsibility, in style and with verve.
