Question - 10:

Tell us what is the timeline for the whole kitchen design process?

Ans:

A lot of people do not understand the amount of time needed for a kitchen remodel. Depending on the scope of the work needed, it can take between 4 to 6 months...and that is, if you have already done all of your shopping and planning and everything has been ordered. It can be a year or more if you are still at the very beginning stages and you still need to have the space designed, pick all of the fixtures, finishes, etc. Also, keep in mind that orders of European cabinets will take longer due to the overseas shipping. The important thing is to know the timeline for each phase of the project so you can plan ahead and ensure smooth sailing.

Question - 21:

Tell me what is the scope of the project in Italian Kitchen Designing?

Ans:

Ok, this is something you should know by yourself but your vision for your new kitchen might imply some structural work on the place that you are not aware of. This is mostly true if you are looking to have a complete layout re-design that will shift the dynamics of the space and will require things like: removing existing walls and replacing them with other structural supports, evening out floors and ceilings, creating dedicated electrical circuits for the kitchen appliances, etc. The kitchen designer will be able to tell you what's needed and these considerations will help determine whether you have to bring on board a contractor and maybe even an architect, or if you can get it all done just with the kitchen designer.
